Obxectivo: Informar sobre as saídas profesionais e oportunidades para alumnado de formación profesional e mellorar a súa empregabilidade e a ocupabilidade.

"EU Back to School" is an inter-institutional initiative whereby European Union officials go back to their former secondary school in their hometown, and discuss their work and experiences in the EU.

Back to School aims to give young people the chance to get to know the European project from close up, and EU staff – often past pupils – become the 'face' of Europe for a day.

After discussion with the teacher, EU officials can share their personal experience with Europe and discuss a variety of topics related to the European Union, with students.

Students get to ask a number of questions varying from working and living abroad, to the use of languages. They can find out more about EU careers or youth opportunities including Erasmus+ and the European Solidarity Corps.

The schools which have already participated in the exercise tend to appreciate this personal way of raising awareness of Europe among their students.

In 2017, over 500 EU officials and members of national governments returned to their school benches in the Member States and spoke with over 60,000 pupils. They had lively discussions, showed videos, played quizzes, brought Belgian chocolates as prizes, and much more.
